

Technical Security Counter Measures- Bug Sweeps

Commonly known as "sweeping", TSCM involves the detailed inspection of meeting rooms, offices, boardrooms and private residences to ensure that no camera, listening, computer-hacking or telephone bugging devices have been deployed.

TSCM has now become an integral part of the overall enterprise security solution for most major corporations and is used by governments, prominent individuals and VIP's to keep their critical information, knowledge, intellectual property and private lives protected - TSCM is a vital element in the security of any organization.

Increasingly, companies are preparing for threats from competitive intelligence gathering and trade secret theft. GSI provides an evaluation of corporate headquarters, meeting facilities and other sensitive locations with our counter-intelligence and counter-surveillance services.

By engaging in proactive and preventative measures, businesses can ensure the protection of propriety information. TSCM is a large step in the direction of increased corporate security.

Global Strategies, Inc. manages and performs electronic countermeasure sweeps (detection of taps and bugs) to determine the existence of actual audio and video devices, along with your vulnerability to electronic eavesdropping. We recommend appropriate remedial protective steps to prevent future loss of technical or proprietary information. GSI utilizes the most technologically advanced equipment available to ensure total reliability and accurate results.

It is difficult to estimate how many industries and individuals are victims of illegal and unwanted surveillance. Evidence of illegal surveillance is often suppressed to avoid publicity or, in some cases, alerting the perpetrator. Many companies are unaware that industrial espionage has affected their business. Eavesdropping and video surveillance may affect several aspects of the following everyday business success:

- Labour union disputes with company management
- New product or trade secrets
- Protection of trade secrets
- Negotiating strategies
- Competitor's knowledge of sales strategies
- Reorganization plans, mergers and takeovers
- Corporate legal problems
- Protection of financial information
- Industrial spies from other companies and/or countries
- Employee spying

When holding highly sensitive corporate meetings or annual meetings, whether at hotel conference rooms or company boardrooms, Global Strategies, Inc. will perform electronic sweeps (inspections) that will encompass all defensive means and methods available to inhibit any illicit attempt to eavesdrop during any meeting of this importance.

Our Technicians

With over forty-years of experience with the United States Secret Service, British Intelligence Services, and US Department of Defence. Global Strategies, Inc. technicians have been involved in planning, developing and implementing technical security programs for corporations, governments and high net individuals.

Should you feel the need for electronic counter-measures, we stand ready to provide you with our highly-trained and well-equipped personnel prepared to exterminate your bug problem.

